Dear Miss Brunson,

Aside from the kind things you say, your letters and theories are very interesting.

But time smothers me. I cannot get done what I must, for there are extra things arising all the time that I cannot anticipate. Last night I broadcast to San Francisco for three hours, by phone, until 3 a.m. our time. Last week I had to go to Chicago for a TV show, next week to New York. These things take such a hunk out of working time I'm behind on WHITEWASH III and have had to abandon other writing for the time being. But these things are necessary if people are to be informed.

So, please understand that if I do not refer to them it is not because I do not find your ideas interesting. They really are. It is just that there is nothing I can do after I read them (as I do immediately) except to put them aside until I have the time to study them.

But do keep me informed.

Sincerely,

Harold Weisberg
